RUN TO NEW YORK

Four months, three camps, countless training sessions. The 2014 Indigenous Marathon Project (IMP) team is just 30km away from running the New York Marathon (November 2). The team has been training since May, most with no previous running experience, and has one last training camp to go – a 30km test event in Alice Springs on September 28. The runners who finish the 30km will travel to New York to line up in the iconic marathon. IMP is a health-promotion charity established by Robert de Castella in 2009, using running to drive social change in Indigenous communities. Qantas is the official airline of the IMP. imp.org.au

Crisis in South Sudan

Six months of conflict in South Sudan has placed six million people, half of them children, in urgent need of humanitarian assistance. Decades of civil war have torn apart South Sudan's agricultural economy and the UN warns the situation is graver than anything the continent has seen since the mid-1980s. More than a third of the country's population is vulnerable to malnutrition. UNICEF is working hard in South Sudan to provide children with the care and resources they need to survive. Just $1.50 can provide a malnourished child with therapeutic food for a day. Help by leaving spare coins in the Change for Good envelope in your headset pack. unicef.org.au
